"I've just deleted my video from my USB flash drive. I can't retrieve it since there is no Recycle Bin for it. Is there any way to recover deleted video?"

Do you like to take video with your smartphone or digital cameras? I do. I know someone even takes video dairy every day. Since videos are precious possessions for us, we should transfer them to the safe place for backup. However, it is common to delete a video file by accident. But how to recover the deleted or lost video? I will share two ways of restoring deleted videos on Windows 10 to help you get back your deleted videos.

1. Recover Deleted Videos from Recycle Bin on Windows 10

Recycle bin is the default folder on your computer for storing the deleted files. As for videos deleted from local hard drive of your computer, it is easy to find them in Recycle Bin. The perquisite for recover the delete video from recycle bin is that you don't empty the recycle bin.

Step 1. Open Recycle bin on your computer. Usually, the Recycle bin icon is on your desktop.

Step 2. Find the deleted video. You can quick find the video by input the video name in the search box in the Recycle bin or sort the files via the "Date Deleted" or "File type".

Step 3. Right click the deleted video and then select "Restore" from the drop-down menu. Then the fill will go back to its original location.

🧃 → Recycle Bin
